Announcement of the seaward expansion of the Wadden Sea National Park of Lower Saxony, Germany

Mid February 2010, the Government of Lower Saxony decided to integrate the two Nature Reserves named 'Küstenmeer vor den ostfriesischen Inseln' and 'Roter Sand' into the Wadden Sea National Park.

The two additional areas are 683 km² large and mainly located in the Offshore Area. Now they are consistently protected by law and managed as Restricted Zones (I/51 and I/52) by the Lower Saxony Wadden Sea National Park Administration. The Wadden Sea National Park of Lower Saxony now covers a total area about 3,460 km².

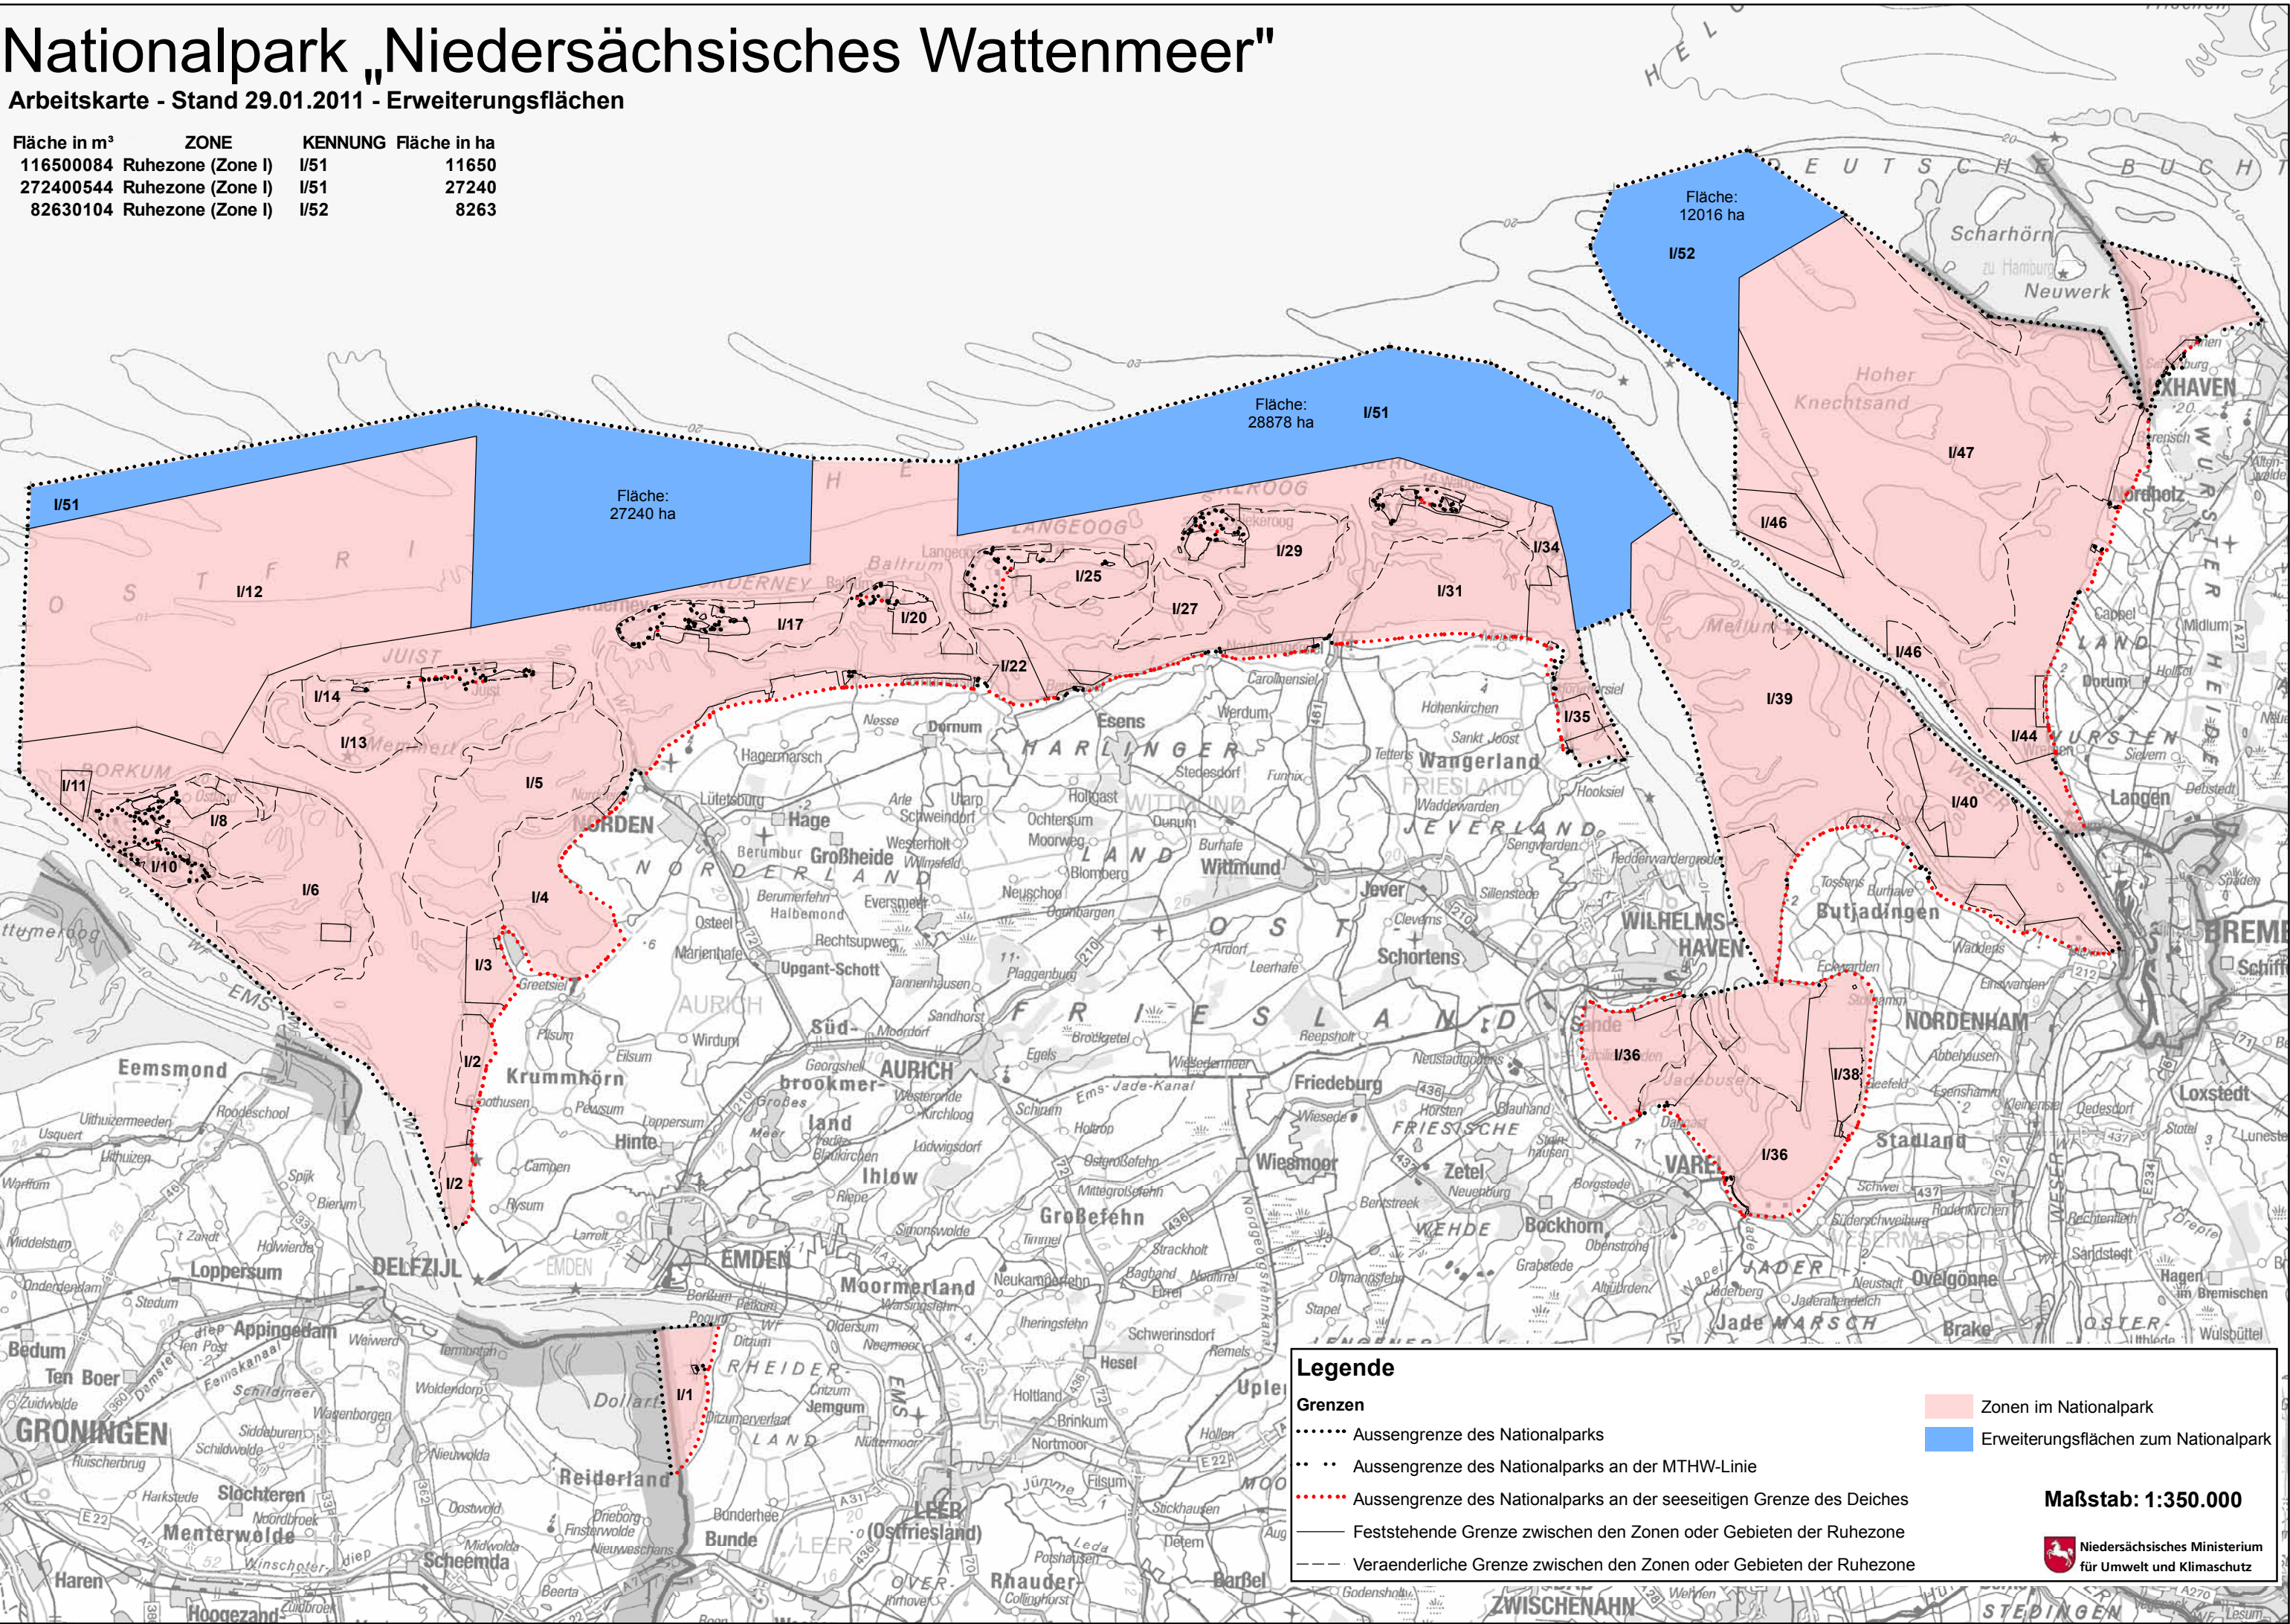

At present the Ministry of Environment and Climate is considering the integration of the extension or parts of it into the trilateral Conservation resp. Cooperation Area.
